

There are many ways that communities and individuals encounter and are transformed by the stories of faith. Those who no longer find a home in mainstream or contemporary worship are searching for new ways to connect culture and imagination with the exploration of faith and spiritual practice. Alternative worship is one such way: worship curated from our belief that God speaks into and from within our cultures and contexts.

This workshop offers an opportunity to explore alternative worship forms through immersing ourselves in the connections between culture, imagination and faith. Cheryl Lawrie, Director of Spirituality, Culture and Context for the Victas Synod, will share her a passion for curating alternative worship and sacred spaces.
